Guide for Responsible Employees who are Not Managers or Supervisors

What does “Responsible Employee” mean?

“Responsible Employee” is the term the Institute Discrimination & Harassment Response Office (IDHR) uses to refer to employees who have an obligation to notify IDHR when they are informed of an incident of sexual harassment or sexual misconduct involving an MIT student.

MIT designates this role to ensure the impacted individual has access to comprehensive information about resources, supportive measures, and resolution pathways.

At MIT, any employee who is not designated as a “confidential resource” is considered a Responsible Employee with regard to allegations of sexual misconduct and sexual harassment involving students. Examples of employees who are Responsible Employees are listed on the right. If you have a question about whether you are a Responsible Employee, email idhr@mit.edu.

What is my obligation as a Responsible Employee?

Responsible Employees are required to inform the IDHR Office if they learn of incidents of sexual harassment, sexual misconduct, dating and domestic violence, or stalking involving an MIT student.

To read the full policy about this obligation visit section 9.5.1.5 of MIT’s Policies & Procedures: policies.mit.edu/policies-procedures/90-relations-and-responsibilities-within-mit-community/95-harassment

How to Respond

| Communicate that you are a Responsible Employee | “Before we continue, it’s important you know that in my role at MIT if I learn of any incident of sexual misconduct, I am required to share that with the Institute Discrimination & Harassment Response Office (IDHR) who will then follow up with resources and information. I’m letting you know this so that you can choose how much you want to share with me. I also want to let you know there are confidential resources available to you.” |
| Care for the student by responding with compassion | “I’m sorry this happened. I appreciate you telling me. How can I help?” |
| Connect the student with resources | “I’m going to inform the IDHR office about what you’ve told me. They will follow up with you to share information about resources and options available to you. It’s completely your choice whether or not to meet with them.” |
| Contact the IDHR Office | “There are a number of places you can reach out to for more information and support, including confidential resources. Here is a list of resources (resources outlined on next page) for you. If it would be helpful, I would be happy to help you get in touch with any of these resources.” |

What material or resource can I share with the student?

- Brochure
- Bathroom Sticker
- Sexual Misconduct Handout

Take care of yourself.

Learning that someone has experienced sexual misconduct or other discrimination can be very difficult. Remember that there are resources available to support you as well. Consider reaching out to Violence Prevention & Response (VPR), Boston Area Rape Crisis Center (BARCC), Ombuds Office, or MyLifeServices for support.

WHAT IF I WOULD RATHER TALK TO ONE OF THE FOLKS BELOW?

EXAMPLES FOR STUDENTS
• Coaches
• Residential Life Staff (including GRAs)
• Academic Advisors
• Faculty
• Teaching Assistants

EXAMPLES FOR EMPLOYEES
• Managers & Supervisors (even if it’s not your Manager/Supervisor)
• Human Resource professionals (both central and DLC-specific)

If you speak with the staff mentioned above (otherwise known as Responsible Employees), they have a responsibility to inform IDHR of the incident. IDHR Staff will then reach out to you via email to ask if you would like to meet and learn more about resources and reporting options available to you. You do not have to agree to meet with IDHR staff.

What is my obligation as a Responsible Employee?

Responsible Employees are required to inform the IDHR Office if they learn of incidents of sexual harassment, sexual misconduct, dating and domestic violence, or stalking involving an MIT student. To read the full policy about this obligation visit section 9.5.1.5 of MIT’s Policies & Procedures.

Do I have additional reporting obligations as a Manager/Supervisor?

In addition to the Responsible Employee obligation described above, managers or supervisors are also required to promptly notify IDHR if they’re informed of an allegation that an MIT employee violated MIT’s policies against sexual harassment, sexual misconduct (which includes dating violence, domestic violence, and stalking), or discrimination or discriminatory harassment based on a protected status. To read the full policy about this additional obligation visit section 7.3.1 of MIT’s Policies & Procedures.
